Kiwanians, Lions, Jaycees

Direct Long Distance Dialing Explained at Joint Club Meeting

A demonstration and discussion of direct long distance dialing was given to members of the Kiwanis and Lions clubs and Jaycees at a meeting held last night at the Masonic temple, by officials of the General Telephone Company.

The Kiwanis club was host club for the joint meeting and Millard H. Lynch, manager of the Harrisburg office of the General Telephone Company, introduced the speaker, Oren Drew of Murphysboro, who was in charge of the demonstration. Also present from the General Telephone Company were Andy Anderson and Norman Klaus.

The direct long distance dialing will go into effect Sunday, Nov. 17, at which time it will be possible to dial directly station-to-station numbers in 800 cities in 25 states. The equipment in the Harrisburg plant will channel calls for local or long distance. A new directory is being distributed this week which lists dialing points by cities and states.

Mr. Drew explained that a phone user wanting to dial a long distance call must dial three numbers—one which hooks his phone to the special equipment in the phone office, one which switches the call to a particular area, and one which rings the phone in a particular home or office in that area.

He said that each area listed has a code number—the code number for southern Illinois is 618.

He demonstrated placing station-to-station calls to various points, using a large dial telephone to illustrate the method of placing the calls.

The entrance code in Harrisburg for long distance dialing, he said, is one-five-zero.

—To dial a long distance point the customer must dial one-five-zero, then the code number for the area.

being called, then the actual number of the place being called. A billing operator will request the number from where the call is originating, and then the call will go through. When the connection is made an automatic timer will time the call until the person placing the call hangs up. A tape records the date, times the call and can record up to a four-hour call.

If a wrong number is received the person making the call should get the person's name, town and state and report to the operator who will make a credit slip for the incomplete call.

Person-to-person or collect calls must be channeled through the long distance operator as usual, Mr. Drew stated.

To place station-to-station long distance calls in this area, such as Shawneetown, Galatia, etc., simply dial one-five-zero, then the number of the place being called, Mr. Drew stated.

As more and more cities are being processed for dial service the new phone book will not have the new ones listed. To get the code number of new cities, dial information, he said.

Mr. Drew conducted a question and answer period from interested members following his demonstration.

Agriculture Dep't Predicts Farm Prices, Income About Same in '58

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department predicted today that farm income and farm prices will be "much the same" next year as this year.

The department also said farm output in 1958 could "equal or exceed" 1957 production if weather and yields continue favorable and fewer acres are put in the soil bank. A bumper 1958 crop would add to existing large farm surpluses.

These predictions came on top of the monthly crop report issued Tuesday.

The next-to-last production estimate for the year showed:

A 1957 crop of 3,333,000,000 bushels, third largest in history, together with a record corn yield of 46.1 bushels an acre; a soybean crop of 491,000,000 bushels, 8 per cent higher than last year and 81 per cent above average; sorghum grains production of 527,000,000 bushels, more than twice last year's crop and more than three times the average; and increases over the previous October forecast for rice, fall potatoes, tobacco, sugar beets, sweet potatoes and apples. Estimates were lower than last month for output of peanuts, dry beans and some fruits.

The department said the present index of total crop production for 1957 is 106 per cent of the 1947-49 base period. This is the same as a month ago and equals the record reached in 1948 and 1956.

The department's view of the 1958 farm outlook was presented in two publications—"The Demand and Price Situation" and "The Agricultural Outlook Digest."

Supplies Heavy, Demand High Department economists gave these forecasts:

—Gross income to farmers may be up a little due to slightly larger sales at about the same average prices.

—Gain in gross income, however, is likely to be just about cancelled by higher costs, leaving farm income generally unchanged.

—Supplies of farm products will continue heavy.

—Demand will continue at the high 1957 level.

—Charges for marketing food will rise a little more, thereby further reducing the farmer's share of the consumer's food dollar.

—Exports will fall below the 1956-57 peak but will stay high.

—Prices paid by farmers will edge higher with increases likely to come mainly from higher interest, taxes and wages.

NATO Admiral Warns of Soviet Naval Power

Says Sole Purpose Is to Destroy Western Alliance

PARIS (AP)—A top American admiral warned the North Atlantic Treaty Organization today that the Russians are building their navy for the sole purpose of destroying the Western Alliance.

Adm. Jerauld Wright, supreme Allied commander of NATO forces in the Atlantic, expressed his views in a speech before a gathering of 180 members of parliament from the 15 NATO countries.

The single aim of the Soviet navy, Wright said, is this:

"The isolation of North America from Europe, the defeat of NATO at sea and therefore the destruction of our alliance."

Second Largest Navy

The American admiral delivered his blunt warning to the NATO legislators, whose meeting here is simply that of an advisory group, just a day after they had been reassured by an American Air Force general about the ready retaliatory striking power of Allied nuclear air power.

"The Russians are building a navy which has risen from seventh place in 1945 to second place in number today, and first place in new construction," Wright said.

"It is a navy larger than all other navies of the world combined except the U. S. Navy. It contains the largest submarine fleet the world has ever known in peacetime."

Wright did not cite any figures, but NATO sources said the Russians now have 500 submarines, a number that is increasing at the rate of 75 to 100 a year.

SAC Bombers Ready

U. S. Air Force Gen. Thomas Power, supreme commander of NATO's Strategic Air Command, told newsmen Tuesday that at all times there were some SAC bombers in the air ready to strike back at any aggression. He strongly intimated, although he did not say so explicitly, that the planes carry nuclear bombs when they go aloft.

Power said other planes on the ground were maintained in a 24-hour state of "take-off readiness." Air crews sleep next to their planes at night, he said.

He said that 15 minutes after an attack warning the ground planes could be in the air and on their way.

Homer A. Gill, 68, Of Galatia, Dies Of Accident Injuries

Homer A. Gill, 68, resident of Galatia, died in the Lightner hospital, Harrisburg, at 11:30 p. m. Tuesday, from injuries sustained in an accident while he was overseeing the cutting of timber southwest of Harrisburg in the Berry settlement, Oct. 30. Mr. Gill was in the hospital until his death.

The body is in the care of the Courtney funeral home and will be returned to the family home to lie in state. Funeral services will be held in Tate's Chapel where he was a member, at 2 p. m. Friday. Rev. George Jenkins will officiate and burial will be in the church cemetery.

Mr. Gill leaves his wife, Zetta, and the following four children: Mrs. Everett Price, Pawnee, Mrs. Lamont Hoover, East St. Louis, Eugene Gill and Phillip Gill, Galatia, and 8 grandchildren. His sisters, Mrs. Henry Hicks and Mrs. Ralph Tate, and his brother, John A. Gill, all of Galatia, also survive.

Stevenson to Be Invited to Capital For Talks with Eisenhower and Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson will be invited to Washington late this month to consult with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, and possibly President Eisenhower, on plans to modernize the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, an informed source said today.

The President will meet with congressional leaders of both parties Dec. 3 to discuss the American approach at the mid-December NATO "summit" meeting in Paris.

Prior to the sessions here, officials said Stevenson, titular head of the Democratic Party, will be given an opportunity to comment on preliminary administration plans, verbally and in writing.

Officials hope he will come to Washington for these consultations.

His presence would strengthen the bipartisan front which the administration hopes to present to Congress and the world when it unveils some controversial features of the plan for greater sharing of weapons and secrets with the NATO Allies.

Stevenson accepted the consultative role Tuesday. He made it clear, however, that he would not take responsibility for the final administration program if it does not reflect his views.

He said he already has given Dulles a memorandum on his "first impressions" of the problems involved.

To Map Satellite Plans

Two Top Space-Missile Experts Summoned for Urgent Meetings

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two top Army space-missile experts have been summoned here for urgent conference Thursday on the launching of an American-made satellite.

At the same time, the United States is pounding home that at key locations all over the world it has nuclear weapons ready on instant notice to deliver a massive counterblow should Russia launch a surprise attack with ballistic missiles.

The two developments put the nation further out in seizing the propaganda offensive from Russia as President Eisenhower prepared tonight to deliver a second "chins up" science and security speech at Oklahoma City, Okla.

Called to map plans with the Pentagon and the National Academy of Science on the satellite effort were German-born rocket scientist Dr. Werner von Braun and Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commander of the Army's Huntsville, Ala., ballistic missile center. Reason Not Given

There was no indication whether their presence would mean a speed-up in the placing of a fully-instrumented satellite up with the Soviet Sputniks. That is scheduled under the Navy's non-military "Vanguard" project for next spring. Launching of six-pound test satellites are set for next month.

Vanguard officials, who had to design their own propulsion equipment, said the United States could have beaten Russia in the satellite race if they had an Army Jupiter-C rocket from the start of the International Geophysical Year project in 1955.

Medaris and Von Braun were expected to work out with officials here the size, shape and weight of the satellite they will hurl into space with their powerful Jupiter-C, a test rocket which has been used in atmosphere re-entry experiments.

U. S. Reassuring World Since last week, when the President acknowledged the Soviets were ahead in some areas of missile development, the United States has been trying to offset the threat by reassuring the world of its power to devastate Russia if the Kremlin launches an attack.

In Paris Tuesday U. S. Air Force Gen. Thomas S. Power indicated America has planes in the air around the clock armed with hydrogen bombs. Although he did not specify what their bomb load was, Power said "they're not carrying bows and arrows."

Administration Dropped Missile Program: Truman

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Truman said today that under his administration "we had a guided missile program" but when the Republicans came into power "the whole program was dropped."

He said the missile program was inaugurated "about the time the Germans were bombing London" and that he brought in K. T.

Will Deliver Second of Chins-Up Talks

Future Security Will Be Theme of Speech at 9:30

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower flew to Oklahoma City today to deliver the second of his series of "chins-up" speeches on U. S. military and scientific might. The address will be carried on radio and television tonight.

The President was scheduled to arrive in Oklahoma City at 4 p. m. c.s.t. and spend about four hours in the Skirvin Towers Hotel before going to the Municipal Auditorium for his speech.

The address, to be made at 9:30 p. m. c.s.t., will be on "future security."

In advance of tonight's speech, Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) urged Eisenhower to deal with "rough facts" and speak with "more conviction." He said the public should be told about the "inter-service rivalry over the production of missiles."

Eisenhower, keeping up the strenuous official pace he has followed since the Soviet Union set Sputniks zooming into space, won't pause in Oklahoma City for a night's rest but will board his plane about midnight for a sleeper jump back to Washington.

Thursday he will preside over the second National Security Council meeting of the week at the White House and attend in the afternoon a meeting of defense industry executives organized as a civilian reserve force.

On Friday morning the President will meet with his cabinet and then, unless some new crisis interferes, fly later in the day to Augusta, Ga., for a long week end of golf.

While the President tonight is expected to follow his main theme of "chins up" for America, his particular points of emphasis were expected to be continuance of a strong mutual security program of foreign aid to friendly nations plus the pressing need for substantially improved scientific education in this country.

Keller, a former president of the Chrysler Corp., to coordinate the Air Force, Navy and Army missile programs.

Truman said he told his own "missiles czar" that if the service rivals "don't come together, I'll help you knock their heads together."

The former President made the statements in a brief, walking news conference as he went from his hotel to the home of his son-in-law, Clifton Daniel, for breakfast.

Asked whether the Eisenhower administration was to blame for a United States lag in missiles and satellite developments, Truman said "That's where the blame belongs."

He was told that a New York newspaper had said in an editorial that Truman had no right to criticize Eisenhower, as there had been no missile program under his own administration.

"That's just crazy as hell," Truman said.

The former President also said he had not been contacted by the Eisenhower administration in regard to the forthcoming meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization heads of state in Paris.

There had been speculation in Washington that perhaps a new attempt would be made to heal the Eisenhower-Truman rift to bring about bipartisan unity in dealing with Russia's scientific challenge.

IAA Committee Asks Abandonment Of Gov't Production Controls

Compromise Calls For New Program, Offers 7-Point Plan

CHICAGO (AP)—A tentative resolution today asked the Illinois Agricultural Assn. to seek "the orderly abandonment of the present governmental production control programs" on the nation's farmers.

The resolution, a compromise which emerged from a divided resolutions committee after a mid-night session, called for a new farm program "designed to adjust total agriculture production to market needs through a conservation approach."

The 27 member resolution committee submitted its recommendations at the 43rd annual convention of the IAA. The 519 of the voting delegates among the 5,000 members attending the convention will vote on the policy matters Thursday.

The resolutions committee called for a shift in the way the soil bank system is being applied. It condemned "recent" farm programs as "ineffective." It criticized many governmental programs as "complicated and inconsistent . . . difficult, time-consuming and expensive."

The committee offered this seven-step procedure "to adjust production to the demands of expanded domestic and foreign markets."

1. Establish a minimum soil conserving base acreage for each farm.

2. Permit unrestricted use of the minimum.

3. Encourage addition of even more acres to the minimum.

4. Prohibit pasture or market crops being grown on crop land added to the base.

5. Permit freedom of use of acreage not in the soil bank "Acreage allotments for grain and fiber crops would be discontinued."

6. Provide adequate price supports.

7. Provide orderly liquidation of present surpluses.

Compromise Smooths Difference Otto Steffy, three time president of the IAA, backed up the resolutions committee in his annual report.

Steffy warned that the national minimum acreage allotment based for corn is making "a step-child" of the farmer in Illinois.

The Economic Picture

EDITORIAL BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

For some time the American economy has been showing mixed trends, with some signs pointing up and others down. Lately, however, the downward pointers have become more common.

Steel output has been softening.
Automobile production for the year is now expected to fall short of the projected 6.2 million cars, though 300,000 above the 1956 level.

Rail traffic has been sufficiently poor to force job lay-offs. Machine tool orders are down, and generally the production of capital equipment—the essential of plant expansion and modernization—is slipping.

True, the cost of living index has continued to edge upward without interruption for 13 months.
But the most recent gain was the smallest in nearly a year.

Washington officialdom is fully aware of the weakening business picture. Though price advances still are occurring in some lines, the government is beginning to act as if inflation no longer is the major threat. The fear now is of recession.

The next two months probably will be critical in determining how far the administration and the key Federal Reserve Board will go toward easing credit and otherwise attempting to stimulate the economy.

The administration cannot tell the Board what to do on the subject of tight money. It can only hope. But a continued downturn almost certainly would bring action from that quarter.

Nobody needs to tell the top Republicans the political danger in all this. The Democrats' idea that Russian success with "Sputnik" spells trouble at the polls for the GOP in 1958 may or may not prove out. But it would be a rash man who would dare to say that a recession marked by substantial unemployment would not have major effect.

Aside from a shooting war, the pocketbook issue is and probably always will be the most telling force the political parties have to contend with. There is no known political magic that can withstand the corrosive damage of bad times.

'Fitting His Talents'

Nikita Khrushchev, Communist party boss of Russia, tried in public comment to equate dismissal of Marshal Zhukov as defense minister with the recent voluntary resignation of Charles E. Wilson as U. S. secretary of defense.

This of course is laughable and Khrushchev cannot imagine that anyone will take him seriously.
Nor will many be much impressed by his solemn assurance that Zhukov will get a new job fitting his talents.

Last spring four top Reds lost their jobs. V. M. Molotov today is batting around in Outer Mongolia.
Georgi Malenkov runs a remote power station. Dmitri Shepilov holds a minor teaching post. And Kaganovich manages a cement factory.

So, by this scale of values, Zhu-kov, hero of World War II, only soldier ever to hold a place in high party councils, could wind up shoveling snow or leading a Russian Boy Scout troop.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND by DREW PEARSON

Drew Pearson says: Six
Army satellites in Alabama warehouse will now get their chance; revelations in this column helped dust them off;
Ike's speech-writers had difficult time getting material for his missile speech.

WASHINGTON.—There were some interesting backstage factors behind the defense department's decision to launch one of the six Army satellites which have been gathering dust in a Huntsville, Ala., warehouse for about six months.

Factor No. 1 was new defense secretary Neil McElroy, who is faster, more venturesome than good old Charlie Wilson. McElroy is also on the spot and wants to get off. He made the decision to let the Army fire, despite the earlier decision in favor of the Navy.

Factor No. 2 was this column of October 25, revealing for the first time that "the Army has six satellites in a warehouse in Huntsville, Ala., all ready to launch.
They could have been launched before the Sputnik, thus keeping the U. S. A. ahead of the USSR and preventing one of the greatest psychological defeats the United States ever suffered."

Factor No. 3 was Dr. Wernher
Von Braun, the Army missile expert, formerly operating for Hitler, now an American citizen, who has been conferring quietly with Navy expert John P. Hagen, in charge of satellite "Project Vanguard." Their quiet cooperation led to Navy acquiescence in giving the Army first crack at catching up with Russia.

BUDGET BUREAU VETO

One point readers have questioned me about is a paragraph in the October 25 column which read:
"About three months ago, the budget bureau, which operates directly under the White House, actually sent auditors to Huntsville to make sure the Army did not spend a nickel on the satellite program."

This sounds incredible. It's not surprising some readers wonder how this could have happened. The answer is that the budget bureau learned that the Army had these satellites and figured it was trying to pull a "stunt" in order to prove that it had the best missile team in the armed services.

Probably the budget bureau's suspicions were justified, because this was just around the time of the Col. Nickerson court-martial.
Nickerson had written a secret memo, a copy of which reached this writer's hands, claiming that the Army was ahead of the Air Force in missile production and that Secretary of Defense Wilson was in serious error in stopping further Army work on an IRBM, or Intermediate Range Ballistic Missile.

Unquestionably the Army would have gone ahead and fired its earth satellite, thus beating Russia, in order to defend Col. Nickerson and prove the efficiency of Army missile experts. However, when the budget bureau, learning of this, sent auditors to Huntsville, they gave flat orders that not a nickel was to be spent on launching a satellite. It would have taken several thousand dollars to transport the satellite to Canaveral, Fla., and launch it.
Furthermore, an order is an order, especially when it comes from an arm of the White House.

So the Army missiles remained in their Alabama warehouse while Sputnik beat us into outer space.

President Eisenhower's solemn but confident television speech the other night gave no hint of the frantic search his special writers conducted for some rocket-missile achievement which would make this speech more reassuring.

Harried aides scurried between the Pentagon and the White House with secret papers describing what the three services are doing in the missile field. These were dumped on the desk of Propaganda specialist Arthur Larson, architect of "Modern Republicanism," recently pulled into the White House from the U. S. information agency.

Inside the Pentagon, Assistant Defense-Secretary Murray Snyder,
formerly No. 2 man for White House public relations, directed the search. He called in representatives of the Army, Navy and Air Force and ordered them to produce "scientific accomplishments" for the president's speech.

"We must have something definite and significant," Snyder urged.

The three services submitted papers that told about achievements already publicized. Snyder showed most interest in the Air Force's "Operation Farside," which shot a research rocket into outer space, and tried to goad the Air Force into exaggerating its achievements.

Though the Air Force lost contact with the Missile after 2,800 miles, Snyder wanted the Air Force to claim the rocket had shot beyond 4,000 miles. Air Force spokesmen explained the rocket may have passed the 4,000-mile mark and may still be travelling in outer space, but warned that the president would discredit himself with scientists if he boasted that the rocket went beyond the proven altitude of 2800 miles. Snyder disregarded this advice and the president mentioned the 4,000-mile figure in his television address.

Snyder also pounced upon the Jupiter nose cone which the Army had recovered after a 3300-mile trip that went 680 miles into outer space. The Army had intended to exhibit the nose cone at the Army Association convention in Washington earlier this month, but Snyder ordered the nose cone held for Ike to unveil on television.

MISSILE MERRY-GO-ROUND

The Army satellites at Huntsville are projectile-shaped, and for that reason nicknamed "Baseball Bats." They contain telemetering equipment and transmitters, thus can be tracked, like the Sputnik.
They are nowhere as big as either Sputnik, varying in size from about 15 to 25 pounds. Sputnik II weighs half a ton . . . it will take four weeks to get the Huntsville satellites re-tested, re-checked, transported to Cape Canaveral and launched . . . they will be boosted into the air by the Jupiter C, the ICBM on which the Army was ordered to stop work. The Jupiter
C is a Restone missile plus Loki missile plus Loki clusters.
Two Jupiter C's have been fired, both successfully. The second,
which dropped a letter on the Air Force, to show how far ahead the Army was in guided missiles, is the Jupiter whose nose cone was recaptured and which Eisenhower showed on TV.

American Education Week

Teachers Trained at SIU Have Real Incentives to Remain in Area

By Dr. Charles D. Neal, director of teacher training; Dr. Dan Cox, assistant director of teacher training; and Dr. Herbert Smith, secondary student teaching supervisor, Southern Illinois University

The preparation of qualified and competent teachers for the schools of Southern Illinois is the purpose of the College of Education at Southern Illinois University. To achieve this purpose, the Department of Teacher Training conducts a program of student teaching in University School and public schools in the area. It is felt that the students can learn to teach best within the traditions and customs of the region by working with the established teachers in the schools of Southern Illinois.

The extent to which this purpose is achieved can be determined in part by the number of graduates who accept teaching positions in the 31 counties which comprise the region served by Southern. Only ten percent of all requests for teachers received by the University come from these counties. In spite of this, two-thirds of the graduates who accept teaching positions go into the Southern Illinois schools.

Real Incentives

Moreover, some who accept positions elsewhere return to this area within a few years. This is evidence of the movement of teachers from one part of the state to another and from one state to another, which is very common in the United States and is not undesirable. Southern Illinois sends some teachers away but, on the other hand, it receives teachers from other parts of Illinois and from other states.

There are real incentives for the graduating S. I. U. student to accept a teaching position in Southern Illinois. The salary paid in many towns compares favorably with the national average, even though the latter figure reflects salaries paid in areas where the cost of living is much higher than it is here. The schools of the area are stable. The teacher does not have to face the disciplinary problems so common in areas where the population far exceeds the capacity of the schools.

The typical school in Southern Illinois is in a village or town rather than in a large city. The relaxation and recreational opportunities offered in such a setting is in contrast with the tense and difficult teaching situations prevailing in many city schools.

Place 400 Each Year

The shortage of highly prepared people is felt in most of the professions today. The trend is for the doctor, the lawyer, and the minister, as well as the teacher, to seek employment first in the large city. This means that the town or village is bidding for professional services in a highly competitive situation. The towns of Southern Illinois have neither an abnormally favorable nor an abnormally unfavorable place in the nation-wide picture. As a matter of fact, because of the stability of the school systems, our teachers

Students attending the meeting are Bill Eppelheimer, Harrisburg; Gary Heape, Vergennes; Warren Talley, Pinckneyville; Leo Mayer, East St. Louis; and Donald

Supreme Court Upholds Conviction In Extortion Attempt

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court Tuesday let stand an Illinois union's conviction for attempted extortion under the federal "anti-racketeering" act.
The court, in a brief order,
denied the union's petition for review of the case.
The union, General Laborers' local 397 of Granite City, and its business agent, Jack Green, were convicted Sept. 24, 1954, of attempting to compel two contractors to hire unwanted laborers through threatened force, violence and fear.
The union and Green were fined
$3,000 each in Federal District Court. In addition, Green was placed on probation for three years and barred from holding any official union position during that period.

Select Herrin As Site for New State Office

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. Stratton's office today announced Herrin has been selected as the site for a new personnel department office to serve the southern Illinois area.

Personnel Director Donald D. McAmis conferred with Stratton about the office location sometime ago, and said the governor would decide between Herrin and West Frankfort.

The new office will employ six to eight persons, and will recruit state employees for state agencies and institutions in the area.

Personnel department employees there will interview applicants, conduct examinations, refer eligibles for jobs, and process other personnel transactions, McAmis said.

A similar office to serve state agencies and citizens in northern Illinois recently was opened in Chicago.

FLORRIE BROWN was in a dreadful state, crying and sobbing and throwing herself about in the disheveled living room.

"I knew Bobby was doing something wrong, I knew it all the time. I asked him but he wouldn't tell me anything. Oh, Bobby, Bobby."

When McKee entered the room she ran to him, caught the lapels of his coat, and looked up into his face, her own bloated and tear-stained. "Don't let them kill him, Inspector. They shoot people running away. Don't let them—don't, don't."

McKee said, "No one's going to shoot your husband, Mrs. Brown," but she wouldn't listen. He slapped her cheeks, hard and suddenly. It brought her back, able to answer a few questions with some degree of coherence.

Florrie Brown said she hadn't seen her husband since he left for the plant that morning. He was in a foul temper; he cut himself shaving and kept shouting at her—he had been out very late. No, he had no money, he had lost all he had gambling in Provincetown last night. Sobbs choked her.

The trouble was that the trap was huge, that Brown was desperate, and that there were five shots left in the gun with which he was armed.

At first Carney was hopeful; the day was still young and the sun bright. But as each fresh rumor proved false his apprehension grew. The crowning blow came when McKee took his departure. The call the Scotsman had been half expecting came through; he had to meet the Commissioner and the Mayor at 6:30 that evening for a conference on the Bromberg case. He didn't want to leave Cornwall at that stage, but there was no getting out of it.

One of the reasons why he didn't want to go was Sarah Casement. He was as convinced as ever that Zita Warren had been attacked as a possible witness of Grant Melville's murder. Tom Gillespie knew now that actually Sarah Casement was the girl at the window across the street. Miss Casement wasn't particularly cautious; others might also know. The safest thing to do was to take her back to New York with him on some pretext or other.

He called the airport and then the Melville cottage. He couldn't raise anyone at the cottage, and called the Tasks. Sarah Casement wasn't there; Carlotta Task said she was probably off somewhere with Tom Gillespie.

THE irony of the whole situation lay in the fact that if McKee had been able to find Sarah that afternoon she would have been more than willing to go back with him to New York.

Everything that had troubled her earlier had been explained—Tom's subtle, cajoling but persistent efforts to keep her quiet because he didn't want his uncle involved, his denial that he had recognized Dennert on the Provincetown plane. He said that at the sight of Dennert his suspicions were at once aroused. He had lost him in Provincetown, and then, when he was driving along Rand Road, he had seen Dennert go into the stone house. He had hurried on to Melville's place to see whether anything had been disturbed or the cottage broken into. After that he had walked down over the moors to see Dennert and try and find out what he was doing in Cornwall—and instead had found Sarah.

There was a shadowy question in her mind about the real relationship between Tom and Channing Hall's wife. She trampled on it persistently, refused to look at it, but it was there.

After the Inspector went, Lisa rested for a while. Her first idea had been to return to the city and her husband that night, but because of the fog all flights off Cape were canceled.

"You'll have to wait until tomorrow," Tom said, and Lisa agreed, saying with a smile, "As long as Sarah's here to chaperone us, I suppose it's all right."

That jarred. For convention's sake Lisa was the one who should have been doing the chaperoning. But it was lightly said, and Sarah threw it away. Then she got a second little stab that went deeper. After Lisa left them and went to bed, Tom talked about her and her confession to McKee. It wasn't so much what he said as the way in which after a few minutes he forgot about her, Sarah, that she was there beside him on the little couch, her hand on his.

WHEN she took her hand away Tom didn't even notice. He said that Lisa's parents were divorced. Her father had died when she was a child and her mother had remarried two or three times and had no interest in a daughter who was young and lovely, so Lisa had been on her own, with money and a free foot.

Then, at the end of a couple of hectic years, she met Channing, and in spite of the difference in their ages they fell deeply in love with each other. Marriage had changed Lisa into a different person. "Pretty brave of her to tell McKee the truth about that rat Melville, wasn't it?" Tom asked.

Sarah said yes, carefully. Was Tom in love with his cousin's wife, perhaps without realizing it?

And then Lisa was so beautiful. The evening was too long and too short; it stretched interminably, it was over in a minute.

Strong Man Needed

Government Situation in France Is Confusing; Set Up for Dictatorship

Editor's Note: James H. Bynum, native of Stonefort and former HTHS teacher, is teaching English and journalism in the Army dependent school at Rochefort, France, and will write his impressions of the area from time to time.

The French government is not stable. (That's probably close to the understatement of the year.) At present France is operating, in a limited sense, without a government. It is a confusing situation.

In organization the French government is similar to that of the English. It is a responsible representative type. The premier and the ministry he has organized, essentially the government, fall when their program is no longer endorsed by a majority of the elected deputies. The premier, failing to obtain support in the chamber but believing that he has popular national support, may dissolve the legislature and call for general elections.

In theory—and as practiced in England—the plan is good. The premier is responsible to the representatives who, in their turn, are immediately responsible to the people, and an important dictum of democracy is stressed.

French, English Not Alike

In copying the plan from England, the French overlooked one very important difference: they and the English are not alike. A plan that will work for a thoughtful, slow-to-act people who are willing to undergo sacrifice to prove their system, will not necessarily work in the same way for an impatient and sentimental people.

So the French people are faced with crisis: the twenty-fourth attempt to form a reliable government since the end of World War II. They are tired of desperate improvising by coalition governments; they are weary of continual, expensive change; and they are disgusted with nothing-done governments.

In short, they are all set up for a dictatorship from the right, and they realize that they are. As a matter of fact many French people advocate a strong, one-man government as the only cure for their economic and governmental ills.

Jean de Montaignier of Chateaufort is sales representative for the Simca Car Company. A marquis, he is tall, handsome, and speaks perfect Oxford English.

"You'll say I'm crazy," he told me, "but Hitler was right. He was trying to unite Europe and organize it. Oh, I didn't like some of the things he did, but I think he would have cooled down later on. France could surely use someone like him now."

Few Frenchmen agree with his opinion on Hitler, or that France needs someone like him, but they are all agreed that France needs someone.

Madame Gabrielle Massard is a French teacher from Fouras. Mention Napoleon and her eyes light up. She is embarrassed to claim that France needs a dictator; she knows the American dislike of dictatorship. Madame, with fine distinction, says what is needed most is "a strong man."

Dictator a Possibility

The most likely candidate for the "strong man" role in France is General Charles de Gaulle. His is a name to conjure with. France was formerly part of the ancient country of Gaul, so you have Charles of France. His Gaullist followers—and there are many—are quick to point that out. They will also recite his World War II heroism, his intense patriotism.

De Gaulle doesn't seem the flamboyant, emotional man that dictators are made of, and his coolness and aloofness have been de-terments to his political ambitions. He has demonstrated often his willingness to take charge of France and bring order to it. More and more French intellectuals are turning to someone of his type, looking for the "benevolent dictator" who will lead them to prosperity and security.

A dictatorship in France may not be the answer, but it is a distinct possibility.

Eisenhower May Recommend Pay Increases

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower was reported today to be preparing to recommend pay increases costing more than one billion dollars a year for military personnel and federal civil service employees.

A reliable source said the pay raises are not likely to become a casualty of the "budget squeeze" next year, despite pressure for multi-billion-dollar increases in missile and rocket spending.

If the administration goes through with present plans to ask Congress for the raises, Congress is likely to approve, as 1958 is an election year.

The administration's decision represents an about-face from the stand it took during this year's congressional session. The President pocket vetoed two bills passed in the closing hours of the 1957 session to raise the pay of postal employees and other civil servants.

The government also turned down early this year the "Cordier report" plan for a major overhaul of military pay scales. Now it is ready to go along with most features of this plan and recommend it to Congress, even though it will initially add several hundred million dollars to the defense budget.

Red Czech President Dies

VIENNA (U) — President Antonin Zapotocky of Czechoslovakia, who masterminded the Communist coup of his country in 1948, died today of a heart attack. He was 73. Prague Radio made the announcement on its regular broadcast and then followed it with funeral music. The broadcast said Zapotocky died two hours earlier following another heart attack. Zapotocky, who led a charmed life amidst purges behind the Iron Curtain, died in the Prague State Sanatorium. He was taken there seriously ill Nov. 4. He had suffered his first attack two years ago. Zapotocky was one of the Reds that engineered the Communist takeover of Czechoslovakia in 1948 and promptly became premier. He rose to the presidency on the death of Klement Gottwald in March, 1953. Zapotocky was born in a Bohemian coal-mining district west of Prague, the son of a tailor who was one of the founders of the Czech Socialist Party. He became a stone-cutter and fought in the Austro-Hungarian army during World War I.

During World War II he spent time in German concentration camps.

Jan. 13 Set for Murder Trial Of Young Couple

SALEM, Ill. (U) — A January trial date was set Tuesday for a young Pennsylvania couple charged with the murder of an Indiana Marine. Circuit Judge Daniel Dailey set Jan. 13 as the trial date for Robert and Trudy Jo Baker, accused of killing Larry M. Kirk, Windlow, Ind., last December. The judge also set a sanity hearing Jan. 6 for Baker, and appointed attorneys Orville Woolard and Robert Washburn, both of Centralia, Ill., to defend the couple. A series of legal moves and the withdrawal of three court-appointed attorneys by mutual consent delayed the original July 22 trial date. Previous defense attorneys contended that Trudy, 17, was denied her rights as a minor; that another judge was prejudiced; and that residents of the Salem area were prejudiced against the defendants.

Expressing Differences In Marriage Helpful

DETROIT (U) — Family Service Society director Clarence Pretzer and a casework supervisor, Laura Askey, report that people can not go on in any relationship always agreeing on everything. "And if you can't express differences, the marriage is not on a sound basis," they said. They agreed that a little "free-flowing emotion" was sometimes less devastating than a rational discussion.

Speakers at the open sessions of the resolutions committee Tuesday urged farmers to take over direction of farm programs themselves and not rely on "politicians." "Let's work up some kind of plan—if we have to have a farm program — and let's do it ourselves," Clair Hemphill, Elwood, Wyo. County, said. "Let's not be dictated to by men in Washington who never had dirt on their shoes."

Roast Present Program
Don Chaplin, Kingston, De Kalb County conservation committee, praised the Gehlbach plan and protested against farm programs "drawn up in Washington" and "forced" upon farmers.

Albert Stratemyer, Metropolis, Massac county, protested that there was "no justice" in the way present acreage allotments were administered. Bert Morton, Salem, Marion county, attacked "wasteful duplication" in administration of the current farm program.

Glen Burroughs, Carmi, White county, appealed to the government for "cheap money," he said was needed to help farmers expand cooperative ventures.

Rocky Rothchild Refuses to Waive Extradition

CAIRO, Ill. (U) — A hearing has been set for Nov. 25 for a former Cairo policeman charged with breaking and entering a Georgia store. Charles (Rocky) Rothchild, 32, refused to waive extradition. Alexander County Sheriff Carl Clutts said the hearing may be delayed because of the time required in extradition proceedings. Clutts said he had notified Franklin County, Ga., authorities that Rothchild had refused to waive extradition and assumed they would appeal to Gov. Stratton. Clutts said Rothchild was charged with breaking into the R. A. Brook storehouse in Franklin County, Ga., Sept. 3. Rothchild denied being involved in the burglary Clutts said Rothchild told him that he was in Cairo Sept. 4 and could prove it. He said he did not see how authorities could think he was in Georgia the previous day.

Jordan Appeals To Arab World

By United Press
Jordan appealed to the Arab world today to end the campaign of hostility against King Hussein, but the Egyptian press and radio attacks were more heated than ever. One Cairo Radio broadcast said it would be impossible for Hussein to keep his throne "in the face of the people's revolt against him." It again accused him of plotting with Israel and the United States. The Cairo newspaper Al Shaab said today Hussein had transferred two million dollars abroad, presumably as a reserve if he were forced to flee from Jordan. Other newspapers said he had been offered 20 million by the United States to create Arab dissension and that he had received three million from the U. S. embassy in Amman to strengthen his forces. The growing propaganda campaign was causing grave concern in London and diplomatic sources said the top could blow off the Jordan powder keg at any time.

Salukis Meet Northern Illinois Saturday in Closing Home Game

CARBONDALE, Ill. — Southern Illinois University's football team braced itself this week for its closing home tilt against Northern Illinois here Saturday, Nov. 16, after losing an exciting 21-12 contest to Central Michigan before a record-breaking crowd of over 10,000 Homecoming fans last Saturday.

Despite the loss, SIU Coach Al Kaval said he planned no major changes in this week's game. "We played good ball," he said, "but five costly fumbles at crucial points of the game meant the difference."

"Also," he added, "we had the misfortune of playing a really tough Central Michigan team at the wrong time. Early in the season Central had injuries and lacked the spark it has had during the past two or three weeks."

"Central," Kaval predicted, "could probably beat any team in the league (Interstate Conference) now."

Outstanding runner in the SIU-Central Michigan game was Southern's Carver Shannon, Corinth, Miss., who came within four yards of a new Interstate Conference single game rushing record as he gained 147 yards in only 16 carries — an average of 12.3 yards per try.

Shannon, who was the Interstate Conference's most valuable player last season, also was a defensive standout, getting 10 tackles. Sharing the defensive honors with Shannon were guard Willie Brown, Memphis, Tenn. (973 S. Fourth), with 13 tackles and Marion Rushing, who had 10.

Shannon scored once on a 62-yard jaunt, and just missed scoring two other touchdowns, one close try, a 26-yard run, being halted on Central's one-yard line.

An SIU offense penalty and a lost fumble on this latter touchdown threat was the turning point of the game. At the time SIU trailed by only two points, 14-12.

Scoring SIU's other touchdown was end Richard Nelson, Wheaton, who recovered a Central punt in the end zone after it had been blocked by Rushing.

Southern will be fighting for a share of third place in the Northern Illinois tilt Saturday. Southern will be a one-touchdown favorite over the Huskies, who fell to Omaha, 14-7, last Saturday in a non-league contest, probable starters for Southern will be Rushing and Nelson at ends; Houston Antwine, Memphis, Tenn., and Richard Carpenter, Centralia, at tackles; Willie Brown, Memphis, Tenn., and either James Lynch, Benton, or Charles Steptoe, Centralia, at guards; John Abromovitch, Haverhill, Mass., center; Bill Norwood Centralia, quarterback; Shannon and Ranette Lewis, East St. Louis, halfbacks; and Paul Restivo, Herrin, fullback.

Game time Saturday will be 1:30 p. m.

Southern will close its season at Great Lakes Naval Training Station Saturday, Nov. 23.

Indians Give Lane Free Hand

CLEVELAND, Ohio — New general manager Frank Lane of the Cleveland Indians arrived here today to begin flexing the "free hand" the Tribe directors promised when they announced his appointment Tuesday.

It was unqualified control of the Indians which Lane sought when he offered himself to the directors. Until Lane acted, the Indians recognized the claim of the St. Louis Cardinals on Lane.

Once it was clear that Lane sincerely wanted to accept the Cleveland challenge, he got his contract on his terms. First was that "free hand." Then came "a three-year contract and a higher salary than I got in St. Louis."

Lane arrived for a one day look around Cleveland. He was due to return to St. Louis for one day then fly to Havana to confer with the Tribe's new field manager, Bobby Bragan, who is piloting a club there.

"I know the Cleveland club well," Lane said. "But it's premature to talk deals. The ultimate decisions will be made by Bragan and Lane."

Lane recommended Bragan strongly to Greenberg while Hank was seeking a successor to one-year field manager Kerby Farrell. Lane termed his new partner "a very good manager — with creative ability."

Lane cancelled the third year of his pact with owner August A. Busch Jr. of the Cards. He said he would "go elsewhere" if the Cleveland job fell through.

Lane's reward in St. Louis, exceeded by the Tribe, was a $50,000 annual salary, five cents on each fan over 800,000 and a liberal expense account.

Coach Millard Davis at Galatia Will Have Good Height on Squad, Opener Nov. 15

The Galatia Bearcats will have to wait until at least Friday, Nov. 15, for their first taste of varsity basketball action this season as their season's opener, at Equality Tuesday, has been postponed due to flu in the Equality school.

Millard Davis, taking his second hitch at coaching and in his first year at Galatia, has a squad with good height as six of the first ten are 6-0 or better.

Coach Davis, a native of Cave-in-Rock, started his coaching career at Rosiclare a couple of years ago, but entered military service around Christmas time of that year. He was released from service in time to start the present term at Galatia.

Galatia will have a brother combination this season as Thornton Davis, 6-2 junior, is a brother of Coach Millard, Thornton, who showed great promise as a freshman and sophomore at Eldorado, moved with his family more than a month ago and will be eligible for the opening game of the year. Coach Davis was a member of the "fire-wagon" Cave-in-Rock team of six or seven years ago and had his Rosiclare team running and pressing, so Galatia fans can expect to see lots of fast, interesting basketball during the coming months.

The varsity squad: Phillip Odle 6-0, Lasley Kimmel 6-1½, Wayne Thornberry 6-2, Don Wickham 5-10, all seniors; Thornton Davis 6-2, Gary Hill 5-9, John A. Williams 5-11, Larry Jones 6-3, Connie Orto 6-0, all juniors; Robert Boyett, 5-11 freshman.

Walden Morris, 8, Wins Four Turkeys at Spot Shooting Match

It remained for an eight-year-old Harrisburg boy to cop the shooting honors at a turkey shoot at New Haven, Ill., Saturday.

Young Walden Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Morris, went to the shoot with Jimmy Peary and brought back four turkeys he won as prizes in spot shooting.

Everybody was amazed at the accuracy of the little fellow, who was firing a 12-gauge shotgun.

Mr. Peary said he had been going to the shoot for the past four years and the most turkey he has ever brought back has been two.

Ridgway and Cave-in-Rock Win Loop Tilts

Shawneetown Loses 62-61 Thriller; 60-47 Pope Co. Loss

Greater Egyptian conference basketball got underway Tuesday night with Ridgway and Cave-in-Rock, the same clubs, taking decisions.

Ridgway, pre-season favorite to cop the conference crown, won a come-from-behind thriller from neighboring Shawneetown 62-61 and Cave-in-Rock beat Pope County 60-47.

Shawneetown, considered to be in the rebuilding stage, hustled all the way to stay in the ball game and almost got away with a major upset. With seconds remaining and the score 62-60 Shawneetown's sophomore Jim Cox was fouled and had a chance to send the game into a 62-all knot, but failed on one of the free tosses and the underdogs Indians went down to a one-point loss.

After trailing through most of the first half, Ridgway, paced by Roger Suttner, the 6-10 1-2 junior center, began to move in the third quarter and with the frame half gone tied the score at 36-36.

Shawneetown led again 37-36 then Ridgway began to pull away and at one time held a 44-39 advantage, only to have the Indians come roaring back for a 44-41 three-quarter time score.

Ridgway built up an 8-point margin in the fourth period, then fought off the Indian rally and claimed the 62-61 victory.

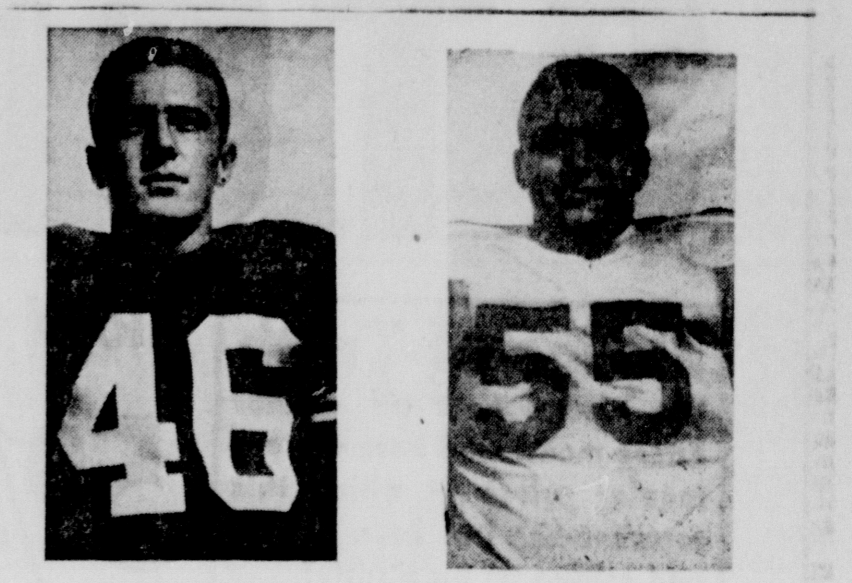

Suttner's 29 points was tops for the game and Charles Monroe paced Shawneetown with 15 points. Pope County led Cave-in-Rock at the end of one quarter of play then fell back and trailed the rest of the way, being out 25-19 at the half, 43-29 at the three-quarter mark and Cave won by a 60-47 final count.

Cave's Shore was high point man of the game with 28, closely trailed by King of Pope County with 27.
